Reflection:

The beginning of the week marked the successful conclusion of the departmental examination period, which helped me refine my skills in administrative oversight and classroom management. A significant highlight was the client meeting on Wednesday, where I had the opportunity to assist in proposing a new system. This experience was invaluable for understanding how to translate technical capabilities into solutions that meet specific client needs. The remainder of the week was dedicated to official holidays, providing a balanced conclusion to a productive period of both administrative and client-facing tasks.

Comments/Evaluation:

You demonstrated growth in administrative and classroom management skills during the examination period. You also showed initiative and understanding in client engagement by contributing to system proposal discussions.
